

March 4th 2009

RE: Letter of Recommendation for Konstantine Haralampopoulos

Dear Sir or Madam:

My name is Dana K. Green, Vice President of Strategy and Business Development for Glycemion. The company is a privately held medical device start-up, that is primarily responsible for the launch and growth of an FDA cleared Diabetes Risk Assessment (DRA) kit.

I hired Konstantine in February 2008 after an extensive and selective search for marketing, sales and business development professional. With his requisite work experience and schooling from a rigorous MBA program, documented record of success as well as his superb interpersonal, communication and presentation skills, I knew that I made the best choice - and I have not been disappointed.

Above and beyond these qualities though, there were several other unique and valuable reasons why I selected Konstantine. His European exposure is evident in the refreshingly sincere manner that he builds relationships and the different way of thinking through issues and developing strategic solutions. He is also an unselfish team player who possesses a very strong work ethic in addition to a confident and optimistic nature, which has served him well given the significant challenges the company has endured.

Konstantine has proven to be superior professional and has been recognized for his efforts by being promoted twice in a relatively short span of time encompassing additional account responsibilities in branding and strategy. A very significant and notable accomplishment was his identification and negotiation of a multi-year private label brand contract for the DRA product. This effort will provide exposure and revenue generation opportunities within many of the largest retail and pharmacy chains in the United States.

He has also had sales and marketing successes in the non-profit, worksite wellness, functional foods and other health professional sectors.

In my career, which spans more than two decades, it is a rarity to work with someone who has truly sets him or herself apart in the same way that Konstantine has over the past thirteen months. I am both honored and confident in providing him a professional recommendation.

Sincerely yours,

Dana K. Green

Dana K. Green
Vice President, Glycemion
312-953-4383